Economic Stimulus Incentives For New Aircraft Dramatically Reduced In 2012.

Cathy Ahles, V.P. Marketing and Business Development, Premier Aircraft Sales, Inc.

As 2011 comes to a close, the "glory days" for economic stimulus incentives are rapidly disappearing. Through Dec. 31 this year, bonus depreciation for new aircraft purchases and new equipment purchases for used aircraft remains at an all-time high of 100%. However, in 2012, bonus depreciation will be cut in half – from 100% to 50%. In addition, the "Section 179" tax incentives for purchase of new equipment for aircraft will be significantly reduced.
